

JOHN WILSON TISDALE.

The Old Turfman Dead, Aged 86.

The oldest turfman in America, John W. Tisdale, who has been entered in the futurity stakes for some time, finished the race at 8 a. m. Tuesday, winning, according to the judges, with ease and peacefulness. He was born in Louisiana county, Va., Nov. 14, 1806, and was consequently 86 years of age. He was brought by his parents to Kentucky in 1810 and they settled on the old Harry Oswald place, near Crab Orchard. "Willie," as he was called, became a jockey at nine and rode in his time some famous races. At 18 he gave up riding for training and has since brought many starters to the post. He professed religion in February, 1891, under the preaching of Ed. J. G. Livingston and became an earnest Christian. That gentleman preached his funeral sermon and eulogized him in the highest manner. The remains were interred at Crab Orchard in the presence of a large assembly.

LANCASTER, GARRARD COUNTY.

The Press says Senator Hill's record on the silver question is one mile in two minutes and 8 seconds.

Rev. Geo. D. Barnes will hold a series of meetings in Lancaster, beginning on the 13th of this month.

Rev. George W. Dunlap will deliver a lecture entitled "A Trip Around the World," at the Court house on Friday evening, June 10th.

The friends of the presidential candidates of the various political parties, who are sanguine that their favorites will be nominated by acclamation should remember that after the nomination there is such a thing as being defeated by acclamation.

Capt. W. C. McFarland, of the 16th U. S. Infantry, arrived with his family at Fort Douglas, Salt Lake City, Utah, on the 24th ultimo. His son, who had been sick in New York for many months stood the trip well and was greatly improved in health.

Garrard College closes next Wednesday. The commencement exercises will begin with the Baccalaureate sermon Sunday night. On Monday evening the annual concert at the court-house hall. On Tuesday night the juveniles will give their entertainment in the College chapel, closing with the commencement exercises held at the Christian church Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock.

The New York Press has ten photographs of James G. Blaine, taken in the last few days by the great artist, Sarony. He says that he has taken photographs of all the great men of this country for many years, including princes and noblemen, but the greatest man he ever turned the camera on was James G. Blaine. He expresses the opinion that Mr. Blaine is in excellent health and capable of doing any amount of hard work.

The provisions of the new election law are required to be given in charge to the grand jury at each term of the court. As the law embraces 57 pages it will require about two hours to read it to the jury and it cannot well be condensed. What the jury will know about it after it is read to them is only a matter of conjecture for it is about as clear as mud. It will require a vigorous intellect and a vast amount of culture to know how to vote in accordance with the provisions of the new law.

Gen. Miles is experimenting with bicycles at Chicago with a view to their introduction in the army. He claims that soldiers mounted on bicycles can travel four times as fast as on foot, but this can be done only on good, smooth roads. How he expects to get along with his army when traveling through the Great West in quest of red skins is not understood. The whole thing is ludicrous and is doubtless the suggestion of some maker of the machines who wants a job from the government.

Mrs. Mary Hackley and son, Henry, of Cincinnati, spent a few days this week in Lancaster visiting relatives. Miss Carrie Woods has returned from a visit to Hustonville. Mrs. Hannah Scott has returned to Nicholasville. Rev. C. M. Reid is visiting his parents on Richmond avenue. Mrs. W. M. Bogliere returned to Clarksville, Tenn., Wednesday. Mr. Forest Benton, who has been visiting his mother, has returned to Booneville. Miss Eugenia Dunlap, of Camp Nelson, is visiting her grandmother, Mrs. W. J. Landraut.

DANVILLE.

Maggie, the little daughter of Mr. W. G. Proctor, is very ill with brain fever.

There will be a closing exhibition of the College gymnasium this, Thursday, evening.

Prof. H. K. Taylor, of Louisville, a son-in-law of Judge N. Sandier, is visiting Danville friends.

Revs. J. M. Worrall and E. H. Pierce delivered appropriate addresses, here on decoration day.

P. H. Idol and T. P. Curry are opposing candidates for common school trustee. The election is to be held Saturday.

Rev. D. W. Dunlap, of Independence, is advertised to deliver Thursday night of this week a lecture entitled "A Trip Around the World," with illustrated views.

E. H. Fox is preparing for the June number of the Centre College Cento photo engravings of Rev. J. M. Worrall, D. D., Rev. J. L. McKee, D. D., Rev. Hubbard, Prof. J. C. Fales, A. B. Nelson and W. B. Berry, all Centre College professors.

Twenty three to nine in favor of the Widows was the way a base ball game ended Wednesday between the Widows and Orphans. The players were dressed in Mother Hubbards and other grotesque attire and presented a decidedly stunning appearance.

Burglars blew open Booker Wilkerson's safe in his butcher shop at Junction City Sunday night and got nothing for their pains, as Booker had deposited his wealth the day before. Booker thinks it was not local talent that made the blast, as local talent never would have invaded his house in search of riches.

Lafayette Price, a boy about 13 years old, a son of Lafayette Price, the stone-worker, was painfully hurt Wednesday by a large stone, which fell from the new common school building and scraped his back. Had the stone fallen a little further forward he would have been instantly killed.

Hon. John Mason Martin, of Birmingham, Ala., who graduated from Centre College in 1856, is in town. Among his classmates were Judge C. A. Hardin, of Harrodsburg, Rev. Joshua Barbee, of Marshall, Mo., Senator J. C. S. Blackburn, J. H. Englemann, of the Farmers Bank, Danville, and Gov. J. B. McCreary.

A rumor that Hannah Arthur, of Danville, daughter of the renowned Kitty Arthur, proprietress of the well-known Dumas House, a hotel where none but the 401 ever stopped, had been slain up in the mountains, has been run down. Hannah still lives, although she was handled pretty roughly a few days ago at Somerset by "another lady," whose husband she had been keeping company with.

Bland Johnson has returned from a three months' absence in Texas, where he has been employed by a Texas pony purchasing agency. With his sombrero hat upon his noble brow, Bland, seated on one of his genuine Mexican ponies, and with immense spurs riveted to each heel, dashes about the streets of Danville as though he never knew any country but the fat and woolly West and no life but the maddening and wild life of the hold, but and reckless cowboy.

Judge McFerran heard Tuesday evening a complaint made by Mike Cullen, the belligerent Irishman of the West End, against Lee VanArsdall and Chas. King, also of the West End, in which the defendants were charged with knifing said Cullen because he had not been like Caesar's wife in the matter of virtue. Mike admits that he is not altogether as pure as an icicle, but claims justification, self-defense or something of the kind. His honor reserved his decision for a day or two, but it is quite probable the case will be dismissed.

The return party to-morrow, Friday night, given by the young men of Danville to the young ladies who invited and escorted them to the leap year party last February, promises to be a brilliant affair, with perhaps an exception in our particular, to-wit: Six or seven, or perhaps more, young ladies, who have received the printed invitations sent out to all, have been asked by no young men in particular to accompany them to the party. Boys, this won't do; if you don't want to take the girls, who took you in February, you ought at least to try and see that they have other company.

In the matter of the Commonwealth of Kentucky against W. K. Vowles, of Junction City, for selling beer in Boyle county contrary to law, five judgments of $100 each were entered against the defendant by Judge McFerran, Tuesday.

The remaining eight were dismissed on motion of the county attorney, as it was not thought there was sufficient evidence to sustain them. Besides it was generally believed that Mr. Vowles did not know he was violating law when he made the sales. He was proceeding under the law of April 19, 1886, which permitted him to sell "in packages not less than five gallons, or one dozen bottles of any size," and did not know that law had been repealed by the act of 1890, which prohibited sales "in any quantity less than ten gallons."

The Interior Journal has been shown a copy of an affidavit sworn to by John Heiner before M. V. Payne, a justice of the peace for Marion county, Ohio, charging one L. P. Walter with obtaining a promissory note Jan. 12th, 1886, for $312 by false pretenses. Also a copy of an indictment found at the September, 1876, term of the Wyandot, O., court of common pleas, charging Lyman Walter and others with committing the crime of abortion on the person of Laura Bates, from the effects of which she died. These documents were used in the Louisville courts in the prosecution of an alleged irregular practitioner, known as Dr. Walter, who travels about through the State, and are to be used for the same purpose by the regular physicians here.

Col. Nicholas McDowell, commissioner of agriculture, completed Tuesday the removal of two of his ancestors from the old Gov. Adair farm, in Mercer county, to the Danville cemetery. They were Samuel McDowell, who died in 1830, and his wife, who died in 1816. A portion of Mrs. McDowell's coffin was well preserved, showing the walnut wood and the velvet bound to the wood by brass tacks. From this same Mercer county farm the remains of Gov. Adair and wife were 16 years ago taken to the Frankfort cemetery. In the Danville cemetery in addition to those placed there Tuesday, and in the same lot, are the bodies of Col. Joseph McDowell and wife, Judge Samuel McDowell, the eminent jurist, and wife. The dust of Dr. Ephraim McDowell, another of this prominent pioneer family, is in the old cemetery, now called McDowell Park, adjoining the First Presbyterian church. Mr. Samuel McDowell, the father of the commissioner, who died in 1839, and his wife, are also buried in the Danville cemetery.

Considerable surprise having been manifested at the closing of the Shelby City and Parksville telephone offices and the announcement that the telephones in private residences and business houses here, and in this vicinity, would be discontinued after the termination of the present contracts, the Interior Journal sought Prof. L. Eddy, the Danville manager, and obtained from him the following:

"By the rules of the American Bell Telephone Co. private parties can obtain contracts to operate toll lines, where each instrument is for public use. Instruments can be obtained for private lines, lines connecting two or three houses and for private business. An exchange is where lines from two or more private instruments to a central office meet, where connections are made as called for. An exchange must be owned and operated by a licensee only, a company controlling a whole State."

The E. Telephone Co., the licensee of this State, gave Mr. Eddy a contract for toll lines and exchanges, thus exceeding its powers. The contract having expired the company has called for the return of the instruments. Mr. E. has applied for a new contract and will probably be able to operate his toll lines again hereafter. For a while, however, his business will be stopped at the busiest season, which will cause much inconvenience.

LITTLE THINGS.

From Dear Kate's Scrap-Book.

A goodly kiss is a little thing,
With your hand on the door to go,
But it saves the woman out of the ring
Of thoughtless word or a cruel sting
That you made an hour ago.

A kiss of greeting is sweet and rare,
After the toll of the day,
But it smooths the furrows out of the care
And lines on the forehead you once called fair
In the years that have flown away.

'Tis a little thing to say "You are kind,"
'I love you, my dear," each night;
But it sends a thrill through the heart, I find,
For love is tender, as love is blind,
As we climb life's rugged height.

We stare each other for love's caress,
We take, but we do not give;
It seems so easy some soul to bless,
But we dole love's gradually, less and less,
Till 'tis bitter and hard to live.

CHURCH AFFAIRS.

Rev. A. V. Sizemore will preach at Mt. Xenia at 3:30 Sunday afternoon.

Col. D. G. Slaughter is erecting a "Tabernacle" in the grove at Green Briar Springs for the Barnes meetings with an amphitheatre which will seat 1,000 persons.

The Barnes troupe left for Danville yesterday morning to the regret of their old and many new friends formed during the meeting, which has been greatly enjoyed by all who attended. Many accepted the Savior and a number were anointed for bodily ills, while all were benighted. The contributions were liberal and everything was done to make their stay pleasant. Mr. Barnes opens at Somerset Saturday evening.

Little Maud, daughter of H. J. and Rebecca Kirkpatrick, died last week, near Maywood, aged 14. She was a lovely child.

WILLIAMSBURG, WHITLEY COUNTY.

Circuit court will begin Monday.

The new buggy supply factory began work Tuesday morning.

The infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Watt died Tuesday morning.

Mrs. J. L. Whitehead is expecting her father and mother, Gen. and Mrs. Green Clay Smith, to visit her soon.

Low Cox was stabbed last Sunday night in a house of ill fame near town. He refuses to tell who did the cutting.

The Summer Normal School taught at the Williamsburg Institute, opened last Monday under the control of Prof. Petty and Stephens.

The cards are out for the marriage of Prof. Gorman Jones, who taught last session at the Williamsburg Institute, and Miss Dollie Miller, of Greenfield, Ohio, at her home, high noon, Saturday, June 4th.

The entertainment given last Friday night by Miss Bingham's music class was one of the most pleasant entertainments of the season. The young ladies who took part exhibited the fact that they had not been idle for the five months they have been taking as well as the ability of their teacher.

R. A. Welsh, of Jellico, and Ph. Schieshan and A. J. Agu, of Jacksboro, Tenn., were down Tuesday. Mrs. J. L. Whitehead visited Dr. Hetherman and family, of Woolridge last week. Mr. Ed Taylor, with John Shillito, Cincinnati, gave our merchants a call last Friday. Miss Belle Arthur is visiting at Pineville and other places in that vicinity.

Selvidge shot and seriously wounded Wilburn France, at Pleasant View, last Tuesday morning. They quarreled over a house when some hard words were passed. Selvidge got his shot-gun and shot both loads into France's left arm and back, several of the shot penetrating the lungs. Selvidge then fled and at this writing has not been captured, although a posse are after him.

Rev. L. E. Tupper preached a sermon to the graduating class of the Academy last Sunday evening at the Congregational church from the text, "Your old men shall dream dreams and your young men see visions." It was a very able discourse and many points could be found in it to benefit the old as well as the young. The class consists of E. E. Nelson, Frank Blakely and Charles Gragg.

Mr. Frank D. Campbell, who was killed in the Wellington, Kan. cyclone, lived here several years and married Miss Watkins, of this place. She was visiting here when he was killed and had intended leaving Saturday morning to join him. She went to Penn., where his father lived, to his burying. They have four children, who were with their mother at the time of his death.

The people's party of the 11th congressional district, held a convention here last Tuesday and nominated R. L. Darham, of Adair, for Congress, W. H. H. McDonald, of Knox, and J. F. McInery, of Pulaski, delegates to Omaha and A. W. Mellicham, of Laurel, presidential elector, and B. B. Wallace member of the State Central Committee. They had several speeches relating to their plan of work and what they intended doing on Tuesday evening at the court house.

Monday was decoration day and there was quite a crowd in town. The programme of the day was made out by the G. A. R. post at this place. They met in the court house, formed a procession and marched out to the Bear Creek Cemetery, where the graves of the federal soldiers were decorated and speeches from various prominent countrymen were listened to. One speaker forgot to eulogize the dead heroes and made his speech on the resolution adopted by the recent democratic county convention held at this place.

LIBERTY, CASEY COUNTY.

A mass convention of the republican party met here for the purpose of nominating candidates for county offices and resulted in the following nominations: For circuit clerk, James Gibony, Jr.; for sheriff, James Brannon; for jailer, John T. Brown. There was a large crowd in attendance and much enthusiasm manifested.

New State Central Committee.

A radical change was made by the convention in the makeup of the State Central Committee. Instead of selecting the members from the State-at-large, it was recommended that two from the State-at-large be chosen, the first named to be chairman, and that each congressional district be represented by one member. The following is the new committee as approved by the convention:

For the State-at-large—John D. Carroll, of Henry; W. L. Jackson, of Jefferson.

First District—E. B. Walker, of Hickman.

Second District—L. A. Spaulding, of Union.

Third District—J. C. Sims, of Warren.

Fourth District—G. W. Richardson, of Meade.

Fifth District—John H. Whallen, of Louisville.

Sixth District—Harvey Myers, of Kenton.

Seventh District—E. M. Dickson, of Bourbon.

Eighth District—John H. Welch, of Jessamine.

Ninth District—Green R. Keller, of Nicholas.

Tenth District—H. P. Thompson, of Clark.

Eleventh District—G. A. Denham, of Whitley.

Louisville is still to be the headquarters for the committee.

The Executive Committee is as follows:

1st District—Henry Burnett, Paducah.

2d—Urey Woodson, Owensboro.

3d—D. C. Walker, Franklin.

4th—W. H. Gardner, Elizabethtown.

5th—Charles B. Long, Louisville.

6th—Rod Perry, Warsaw.

7th—E. Polk Johnson, Frankfort.

8th—Lewis McKee, Lawrenceburg.

9th—Chas. B. Poyntz, Maysville.

10th—R. H. Van Sant, Sandy Hook.

11th—R. M. Jackson, London.

—Senator Quay is still expressing the opinion that Mr. Blaine will not only be nominated at the Minneapolis convention, but that he will be nominated on the first ballot.

Refreshing Retreats.

Summer days are fast approaching and now is the time that excursions, pleasure-seekers and sportsmen should make out a route for their summer vacation. In doing so, the delightful cool summer and fishing resorts located along the Wisconsin Central Lines come vividly to view, among which are Fox Lake, Ill.; Lake Villa, Ill.; Mukwonago, Waukegan, Cedar Lake, Neenah, Waubesa, Fish Lake, Keshishaw and Ashland, Wis. Wisconsin has within the last few years become the mecca of attraction for most pleasure seekers, hunters and fishermen than any other State in the Union, and each visit increases the desire to again see the charming landscapes, breathe the fresh air, and take part in the invigorating atmosphere, wander through the columns of stately pines and look the speckled beauties within the lake's bosom. For pamphlets containing valuable information, etc., apply to T. S. PATTY, G. P. A., Channahon, Tenn., or JAS. C. POND, General Passenger and Ticket Agent, Chicago, Ill.

In almost every neighborhood throughout the West there is some one or more persons whose lives have been saved by Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhea Remedy, or who have been cured of chronic diarrhea by it. Such persons take especial pleasure in recommending the remedy to others. The plate that follows its introduction and use makes it very popular. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Dr. M. L. Bourne, Druggist and Optician, Stanford, Ky.

The First Step.

Perhaps you are run down, can't eat, can't sleep, can't think—can't do anything to your satisfaction, and you wonder what ails you. You should heed the warning, you are taking the first step into nervous prostration. You need a nerve tonic and Electric Bitters will find the best remedy for restoring your nervous system to its normal, healthy condition. Surprising results follow the use of this Nerve Tonic and Alternative. Your appetite returns, good digestion is restored, and the liver and kidneys resume healthy action. Try a bottle. Price 50 cents at A. R. Penny's drug store.

A Little Girl's Experience in a Light House.

Mr. and Mrs. Loren Trevelock are keepers of the Gov. Light-house, Sand Beach, Mich., and are blessed with a daughter 4 years old. Last April she was taken down with measles, followed with a dreadful cough and turning into a fever. Dosed at home and at Detroit treated her, but in vain; she grew worse rapidly until she was a mere "handful of bones." Then she tried Dr. King's New Discovery and after she took two and a half bottles, was completely cured. They say Dr. King's New Discovery is worth its weight in gold, yet you may get a trial bottle free at A. R. Penny's drug store.

Some of the Great Army Boys may be interested in the following from Alex. H. Pope, A. D. C., Commander 1st Tenn. and 4th Ga. He says, "We have had an epidemic of whooping cough here, Stewart, Tenn., and Chamberlain's (Cough) Remedy has been the only medicine that has done any good." There is no danger from whooping cough when this remedy is freely given. It completely cures the disease, 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Dr. M. L. Bourne, Druggist and Optician, Stanford, Ky.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.

When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria.

When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria.

When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

Dr. M. L. Bourne, the druggist, desires us to publish the following testimony, as he handles the remedy and believes it to be reliable. "I bought a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and applied it to my limbs, which have been afflicted with rheumatism at intervals for many years. I completely cured them. I was unable to walk. I can truthfully say that Pain Balm has completely cured me. R. H. Farr, Holywood, Kan." A. B. Cox, the leading druggist at Holywood, vouches for the truth of the above statement.

PAPA'S BIRTHDAY.

How Little Madeline Spent Her Pennies and Made Everybody Happy.

"It's my papa's birthday," a childish voice calls out, and a little girl runs down the piazza to greet her playmate, who is coming across the street with a large doll.

"Is it really? Did he get any presents?"

"Oh, yes! Mamma gave him a scarf-pin, and Guy cuff-buttons. I'd lost my pennies, so had no present for papa, and only kissed him. I'm afraid he was sorry, for he looked like he was going to cry, and then he gave me pennies 'stead."

"I'll tell you what you could do with 'em, Madeline—buy him a present."

"What can I get?"

"Let's go up to Mrs. Smith's greenhouse for a plant, then we'll carry it in Dolly's carriage."

Two little girls are soon knocking at Mrs. Smith's door.

"Well, dearies, how do you come without nurse?"

"Left her home, 'cause we've got a secret."

"Dear me, what is it?"

"Oh, we'll tell you: Madeline couldn't give her papa a birthday present 'cause she lost her pennies with the gypsies; but her papa gave her some more."

"And how many have you?"

"We've got twenty-three to buy a flower."

"Would you like a rose?"

"Oh, yes."

Into the greenhouse they go, where Mrs. Smith gets the rose.

"It's beautiful!" they exclaim.

"Won't papa be glad?"

The plant is put in Dolly's carriage, and two happier little girls it would be impossible to find.

On their way they stop to pick daisies, which Alice thinks would make a pretty wreath.

"Oh, Madeline, don't go so fast; it makes the rose shaky. Wait a minute, so I can hold on while you drive."

Before long the little girls arrived home, where mamma was waiting them anxiously, telling them never to go away without nurse, which they promised. Then they sat down on the piazza to make the wreath.

The rose was taken to the dining-room, and when the wreath was finished it was put around it in the center of the table.

Then the little girls eagerly watched papa's return.

"What's this?" was his first remark as he looked into the dining-room.

"It's my present for you," Madeline replied, rushing into his arms.

"How did you get it?"

"With the pennies you gave me."

And papa, holding her in his arms, turned to mamma, saying:

"But here is our best birthday present."—Emma Toussaint, in Our Little Ones.

CÆSAR AS A JUDGE.

How a Big Newfoundland Dispensed Justice to an ill-treated Dog.

Cæsar, our great Newfoundland, had a very friendly way with small dogs, because he was used to them, there being always a few house-dogs in the family, but he showed a decided preference for although he would permit Juliet, a small Scotch terrier, to make his broad side her place of repose when she was out-of-doors, and seemed to like it, yet if Romeo, her mate, only a few pounds heavier, offered to follow her example, an ominous growl warned him off.

One of us children had to go every morning to the baker's for fresh rolls, and Cæsar carried the basket. On the square there was a tailor's establishment kept by a man named Gnn, who owned a little reddish-brown dog which had arrived at old age without either its wisdom or its dignity. He had a bad habit of flying out at every dog which passed, even though the dog might be attending strictly to his own business, but he never meddled with Cæsar, unless he had his mouth too full to resent such impudence.

One morning I was accompanied by my older sister—one who had a very high spirit, and who could never bear injustice in any form—and when the little cur made his usual attack, she remarked, in low tones: "Cæsar, put down the basket and teach him a lesson."

Cæsar needed no urging. Very deliberately he set the basket down, picked up the small red dog by the skin on the back of the neck, and began to trot off with his tormentor dangling from his mouth. In a very shrill and scared condition, Cæsar soon broke from a trot into a run, and in much less time than it takes to tell it, he had sped around the square with his odd-looking burden, and, returning to the starting-point, dropped him from his mouth, very much terrified, but entirely unharmed.

The dog lost no time in getting inside the shop door, while Cæsar picked up his basket and walked proudly away, never again to be molested by Gnn's cur, for if he caught a glimpse of Cæsar coming, he would disappear as if by magic, and he was much more careful about attacking other dogs as well.

A MOVING-DAY STORY.

The New Baby Made Lots of Work for Winifred and Mabel.

It was moving day in the playroom. All the dolls, as well as the doll-house and the tin kitchens, bureaus, chairs and playthings, were to be moved from the big back room where they had always been comfortably situated, into a little back hall room, which, though smaller, should be entirely devoted to them.

A new baby had been added to the family, and the baby and baby's nurse required so much extra space that it became necessary to give them the large room. And so the doll and the doll's colony had to be moved.

Winifred and Mabel Hastings, who were the little owners of the playroom and its contents, were up brightly and early on moving day, and right after breakfast set about their task of carrying the things into the little hall room. It had all been nicely cleaned, and upon the floor there was a bright new matting, while the walls were nicely hung with bright pictures carefully cut from papers and magazines. Thus Winifred and Mabel had none of the horrors of housecleaning to go through and had merely the task of moving.

After a consultation as to which should be moved first they decided that it was best to carry Sister Rose Gertrude and her colony of sick dolls and to dispose of them safely in one corner, so that none of the invalids should be disturbed by the tearing up of the other things in the old playroom.

Accordingly Winifred carefully carried Sister Rose Gertrude, who was a tall cloth doll, with a china head and in a long gray dress, with a big white apron and cap, into the new playroom and placed her in one corner.

Mabel followed with an armful of sick dolls. Among the invalids there was Miss Malaprop, who had lost one arm, and who was beyond cure because she was a jointed doll and the arm was broken squarely off at the shoulder joint. There was also Mrs. Kendal, who had been scalped one day by some terrible boys who had broken into the playroom with Brother Frank and who had taken this awful revenge because they had not been invited to join a little feast going on there at the time.

Mr. Kendal had likewise suffered misfortune in having lost one of his eyes, which, being of glass, had broken one day when Mabel dropped him on the floor. This was specially mourned, as Mr. Kendal was a big Chinese doll and the only gentleman in the entire colony.

Of course, no one thought of throwing him away, and so he was put in the hospital and given over to the tender care of Sister Rose Gertrude.

There were three or four dolls in a very dilapidated state of health, and one was so very ill that she had to be kept in bed covered up all the time. If the truth were known, the poor unfortunate had no head, but she was kept so carefully covered up under the counterpane, with only one foot sticking out at the foot of the little wooden bedstead, that no visitor in the playroom ever suspected that the occupant was so severely afflicted as to have really no head at all.

When the hospital had been comfortably disposed of the two little girls went back for the playhouse. This was rather large and heavy to move, and in getting it in the room all the little tables were upset, the dishes were knocked out of the playhouse chest and the pictures fell off the walls. These had to be put to rights and the playhouse securely stationed where it would show off to the best advantage, as it was the particular ornament of the playroom.

But last of all Winifred and Mabel brought in the beauty and pride of the entire playroom. It was a large French doll named Patti. She could speak, sing two tunes and, if properly wound up and slightly supported on each side, could take a few steps very acceptably.

Mme. Patti had a beautiful little gold chair of her own, and by its side there stood a trunk bound with white satin, which contained three beautiful evening dresses, for Mme. Patti never dressed in any other than full dress. All these moving preparations and arranging the things afterward took a great deal of time, and when Mabel and Winifred had at length got everything in place, even to the last paper doll and picture book, fully two hours had passed away, and the little girls were thoroughly tired out from their efforts.

"I never knew it was such hard work to move," said Winifred that day at the luncheon table.

"Nor I," said Mabel. "But it isn't everybody that can begin to move after breakfast and get all through before luncheon."

"No, indeed, it isn't," said Grandma Hastings, approvingly. And so Winifred and Mabel were satisfied with their morning's work, even though they felt very tired.—N. Y. Advertiser.

A Witty Answer.

Queen Caroline of England once inquired of Mr. Pitt, the elder, what it would cost to shut up the London public parks, and make them private grounds.

Mr. Pitt knew that the people would never submit to this, but his answer was polite. "Three crowns, your majesty," was his reply.—Harper's Young People.

The Mutuals of Louisville and the Interior Journal will cross bats at Rochester Park this afternoon at 3. It will be a big game and lovers of the sport will be out in large numbers.

JOHN M. McROBERTS, Sr., sold to M. D. Elmore 12 acres of the full back of their residences on the other side of the St. Asaph, at $115. It cost Mr. M. $92 an acre when he bought it a number of years ago.

"OYSTEN BILL." ALFORD, who was raised here, has just completed his term of six years at Frankfort for killing a man, some 12 years ago, having run off immediately afterwards and not captured for a number of years.

Mr. T. M. PENNINGTON is making preparations to build a two-story dwelling on the site of the one burned last fall. It will be after the Queen Anne order and will materially help the appearance of Lower Main street.

The tin wedding of Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Cooper was celebrated Tuesday evening and they are now in possession of enough tinware to start a store. Quite a number of friends were present and enjoyed greatly an elegant supper.

Mrs. Wm. COOLEY asks us to thank all the kind friends, who worked so bravely to save her property, which, but for them would have been a total loss. She denies that four dogs got burned up, though. There were only two and they were under the house, not in it.

The father of the East End bride, who was mentioned in last paper in connection with a scandal, says the report originated through the jealousy of a scheming woman and has no foundation whatever. What was taken for something else proves to be the droopy.

LITTLE JOHNNIE COOK, who ran away from his home a few weeks ago and was found in jail at Lexington, has gone again and his parents are in search of him. The little fellow is bent on leaving home and the best thing his parents can do is to let him stay until he gets tired of it.

Mrs. T. W. MILLER has sold her residence and lot of two acres, on Lower Main street, to John N. Menefee for $5,000, which seems to be reasonable enough. Possession will be given Oct. 1st and Mrs. Miller with Mr. John Sam Owsley's family will remove to his splendid farm at Walnut Flat. The young people regret very much to have the young ladies go away, even if it but five miles into the country.

WAIVED.—West King, who killed Frank Fish at Crab Orchard, waived an examination when his case was called Wednesday and he was held in $1,500 bail to circuit court. Of course he will not be able to give it. The mitigating circumstances are that Fish drew a pistol on him in the afternoon and when King told him he was not armed, said: "Go and arm yourself, I intend to kill you." King went home and got his pistol and returning told Fish he was ready for him, at the same time opening fire. Fish's pistol wouldn't work and King got in his work on the fifth fire.

Dr. T. B. LEWIS tells us that the other day he started his son Logan, aged 12, in a buggy for his sister, Miss Maggie, whose school had closed at Buckeye. When near Pink Cottage the boy says he remembers to have seen a man approaching in a buggy and after that all was a blank. The murderous scamp drove into his buggy, breaking it and throwing the boy out, where he lay insensible for some time. The horse was afterwards found some distance further on. The boy does not know who the man was, but if Dr. Lewis could find out he would make it hot for him. It was a mean and cowardly act.

COLLEGE CONCERT.—The lowering, leaking clouds of Wednesday threatened to seriously interfere with the attendance at the annual concert of Stanford Female College, but by sun-down the skies brightened and made the evening most propitious for the entertainment, which was taken advantage of by the largest crowd that ever attended a similar performance at Walton's Opera House. There were between 500 and 600 people in the house, more than 400 of whom paid the admission fee. The programme was carried out like clock-work and the little ladies did honor to their capable trainers. The only thing that could be said against it was that it was too long, but this could hardly have been avoided with so many pupils to "show off." At 8 o'clock the curtain rose and for nearly four hours, the following programme was given as fast as the different changes could be made:

Ten Little Sunflowers.....Brother Boat Song.....

Primary Class.....

Music—Scherzo.....Ladies Miss Janie Wearen.

Shaking Quaker.....Brother Primary Class.

Music—Postillon d'Amour.....Ladies Misses Wearen.

Promenade of the Broadway Belles.....Choir Music—Waltz in G Major.....

Misses Ansley, Shelton and Carter. Recitation—The Daughter of Herodias.....Miss Lankey.

Music—John de Bal.....Gibbs Misses Mchenry and Reid.

Recitation—The Legend of Van Bibber's Book.....Miss Beth Books.

Music—Schneeglöckchen.....Ladies Misses Newland and Lanman.

Recitation—The Rainbow.....Choir Miss Callie Horton.

Recitation—The Sunbeam.....Miss Ethyl Beasley.

Recitation—The Cloud.....Shelley Miss Mattie Hopper.

Music—Estudiantina.....Ladies Misses Ballou and Baughman.

Recitation—The Angel's Story.....Miss Lizzie Menefee.

Music—Valse de Concert.....Choir Misses Owsley, Newland, Moreland and Straub.

Recitation—The Soldier's Joy.....Books Miss Maggie Bright.

Music—Glad Rejoice.....Choir Misses Moore and Moss.

Recitation—The Parting Lovers.....Choir Miss Emily Alexander.

Music—Airs from Mozart's Operas.....Choir Misses Menefee.

Statuary—Pictures Found in Herculaneum Toilet of the Bride. Dance of the Masses. Noble Group.

Song—Message of Love.....Ladies Miss Nora Moreland.

STATUARY.

1. Familiar Repose. 5. Defiance. 2. Ceremony and Respect. 6. Despair. 3. Indecision. 7. Animation. 4. Reflection. 8. Suspense. 9. Vehemence.

Music—International Fantasia.....Epstein Misses McAndly and Gann.

The recitations, pictures and posing were superintended by Mrs. J. M. Hubbard; Miss Louis Tipton managed the calisthenics; Mrs. Georgia Kirtley drilled the primary class and Miss Gertrude Howard's pains and patience was evinced in the excellence in which her class rendered the musical numbers.

All the ladies deserve the highest praise and judging from the way the audience enjoyed the performance they received it. The song, "Ten Little Sunflowers," in which the hands of ten little ladies appeared in the flowers painted by Miss Eva Bedinger, was very artistically given and in response to requests was reproduced. The shaking quakers, the recitations, the music, both vocal and instrumental, each deserve especial and extended mention, which we are not now able to give. The statuary and pictures were an artistic triumph and the graceful posing of the lovely maidens, in snow white toilets, were received with admiration and wonder. It was "high onto" the solemn hour of midnight when the last number was given and the audience slowly deserted the hall where brilliancy and beauty had reigned so charmingly.

The commencement exercises were held last night, but we go to press too early to give a detailed report. The five sweet girl graduates read essays as follows: Miss Essie Burch, "Things Don't Turn up Until Somebody Turns Them up;" Miss Susie Lasley, "Mine and Thine;" Miss Anna Menefee, "Volunteers for the Millennium;" Miss Ella Wright, "There is Nothing More Royal Than Truth, More Kingly Than Kipliness;" Miss Ophelia Lackey, "I Shall Not Pass This Way Again."

Immediately after the commencement exercises, which were expected to conclude at 9:30, the V. A. M.'s were to entertain at the College in honor of the graduating class.

The principal, Prof. J. M. Hubbard, tells us that the session has been the most prosperous since he took charge five years ago. The number of pupils enrolled was 104 and the attendance was large all the time. No sickness or death has marred the peace and happiness that has prevailed among the pupils, and on the whole the faculty has great cause for congratulation. We hope to see each member back again, for they have done well and earned the most hearty plaudits of their patrons.

FARM AND TRADE ITEMS.

—M. F. Elkin bought of John G. Lynn a lot of fat hogs at 4c.

—William Moreland sold to M. F. Elkin a lot of fat hogs at 4c.

—O. P. Newland sold to A. T. Nunnally 15 hogs, 175 pounds, at 3.85.

—D. N. Prewitt bought of Luther Underwood his lambs for July 1 delivery at 54 cents.

—Monte & Jesse Fox sold to Wehl, for Goldenmith, 40 head of 1,250-pound cattle at 34.

—Bahr & Kahn, of Middleboro, purchased of various parties a lot of cows and calves at $50.

—John Raney bought of his brothers and sisters the Milton Raney farm, containing 88 acres, for $2,750.

—Behr & Kahn bought of Jesse and Montie Fox a lot of 1,000-pound cattle at 3 cents, and six averaging 1,070 at 3 1/2.

—Beasley Bros. & Hays have had a splendid season with their fine saddle stallion, Silver Tip 69, and give the 18th Annual Journal some of the credit for it. He has served 53 mares.

—The Metropolitan Handicap, worth $10,000, was won at Morris Park by Pessara, with Locohatchie, formerly Curt Ginn, second, and Sleipner third. Nearly 50,000 people saw the race.

—William Moreland bought of various parties a lot of fat hogs at 3 1/2 to 4 cents, and of A. T. Nunnally a bunch of extra good ones at 4 1/2 cents. He also bought 13 head of butcher heifers at 2.85.

—J. L. Yantis had a fine jack colt dropped May 3, which he says is the finest in America. He is by George Tarkington's Imported Paragon and is out of the same jennet as the one he has just sold Turley & Walker for $1,000.

—Lily Flag, of the Monteseo Dairy, near Huntsville, Ala., beat the world's greatest Jersey cow butter production record, having reached 1,023 pounds, 13 1/2 ounces in four days less than a year. Bisson's Belle held the year's record before with 1,028 pounds, 15 1/2 ounces.

MATRIMONIAL MATTERS.

—R. L. Camden, a brakeman, and Miss Belle Burge were married at the bride's home yesterday.

The Coal Operators and Miners.

(To the Editor Interior Journal.) The public is aware that since May 1 there has been a strike at the coal mines in Laurel county, resulting from a disagreement between miners and operators about wages. After a meeting of both parties and an effort to settle the matter among themselves, which failed, the operators proposed to the miners, who are Knights of Labor, to arbitrate the whole matter, arbitration being one of the cardinal principles of the Order of Knights of Labor, which proposition the miners rejected, insisting upon their position alone. Under this state of case, the coal works having now been idle for a whole month, on June 1 the operators determined by unanimous vote not to treat longer with Knights of Labor, as they had abandoned their former principles, and to demand of the men the horses they were occupying that they might employ to work and put in these houses men who are not Knights of Labor.

—Among a multitude of resolutions passed by the Northern Presbyterian General Assembly during its final hours, was one denouncing the lynching of negroes in this country and another condemning the use of tobacco.

FOR SUNDAY READING.

WHEN AND HOW.

In Thine own time, Lord Jesus, Thine own way,
Then I take me home;
Thou only knowest when and how for me
The end shall come.

And I am glad that I have naught to do
With time and way;
I could not choose, if I were left to me,
I could not say.

I am so busy, Lord, and still there seems
So much to do;
The days crowd on, each short, each incomplete
When I think of Thee.

Far on, above me, stands Myself, I feel,
What I have lost;
And ever, eager, I am reaching on
To that I see.

Yet, Master, only let Thy call be clear;
And then, although
My life may seem unfinished, poor and small,
I'll gladly go.

Thine is the way, Lord Jesus; knowing this
I'm not afraid;
Thou hast been through the bitterness of death,
Its deepest shade.

I'll go the way that seems to Thee the best,
And trust Thy love,
When, letting go of earth, I trembling turn
To that above.

So, Lord, I'll live, and make the most and best
Of time till then;
Content to leave to Thee, in quiet rest,
The how and when.

FORGIVENESS.

It and God's Mercy Made a Useful Man of a Criminal.

During the late civil war an assembly camp was for a time established in the outskirts of Brooklyn, near what has since been known as "East New York." The officer in command, afterward a well-known general, and later the chief of police of Brooklyn, was then a colonel. Residing in the town, he was accustomed to return home at night after having seen things quiet among this large body of men as yet unassigned to regiments.

One night, at a very late hour, an orderly galloped to the colonel's door in the middle of the night. The colonel, who was then a colonel, and later the chief of police of Brooklyn, was then a colonel. Residing in the town, he was accustomed to return home at night after having seen things quiet among this large body of men as yet unassigned to regiments.

Almost instantly the colonel was aroused, and was clattering off to learn with his own eyes the rest of the story. "As I crossed the railroad in front of the camp," he once said to the writer, "my mare was forced to walk and pick her way. I remember seeing a soldier who lay flat between the tracks, with his hands in his pockets. I saw the gleam of his bayonet even now. But as the guard had been roughly handled at the gate, I supposed this was one of the poor fellows who had been knocked over at his post."

"At all events, the mare sprang clear over him, and took me at once into the midst of the lawless crowd. They had, indeed, fired the drink shop, and were playing with the fags like drunken demons."

Order was soon restored, and the incident passed from the officer's mind until the busy scenes of actual war. A year later three deserters, condemned to be shot, were brought before him at headquarters in the field.

"It seemed a hard fate," he said afterward, "and capital punishment being new to me, I took it upon myself to exhort the fellows to respect themselves, serve their country, and ask God to help them to be decent men; then I sent them back to the ranks, forgiven."

"The boy on my left, the tallest of the three, appeared to a tender spot in my heart. He was rough and ugly, but he was handsome, too handsome to be shot in a ditch. I thought of my own boy. Then, too, there was something in his look that I never shall forget, especially when I spoke about their asking God's help to behave themselves."

The pardoned deserters went back to their places, and this incident also passed out of the officer's recollection. One day a letter came to the police headquarters in Brooklyn, addressed to the chief. It said in part:

"I was once intending to shoot you in mere wanton wickedness. But God's mercy saved me. I know not why else I did not pull the trigger."

He was the soldier who had lain beneath the rails at East New York. "Again I was intending to spring upon you when in your tent for desertion. But God's mercy spared me. You forgave me. It was that pardon which touched my poor, orphaned heart. . . . I sought Heaven's pardon, for pardon seemed so sweet! . . . For five years now I have been rector of — church in this great city of —. The mercy of God having held me up long, I may safely trust it will to the end."—Youth's Companion.

GOD'S WORK FOR US.

It May Seem Very Poor and Weak, But It Has a Power.

The world is made up of ordinary people. Now and then a genius shines like Sirius among the stars of the second magnitude, but the sun of two talents is the common supply. They belong to the rank and file of human beings, to whose care the interests of the world have been intrusted.

In a block of dark porphyritic granite a line of fire opal is discovered. The colors glow and deepen in the sunlight. It is like a bed of rainbows, and valued as a precious gem. The foundations of our earth are coarse and common substances, both granite and trap. They lie around us every day, and we look upon them with indifference. But they rear the mountains; they hold the rivers in their course. The ice and snow have borne down huge boulders for walls and bulwarks. Their ledges furnish labor to thousands of men. Because gems are hidden away in crevices, a pebble need not be counted as worthless.

Men and women need help along their own line. Someone is always waiting to receive a thought, that needs to be simply expressed in plain language.

A woman who had passed through a season of trial, and received spiritual help, wrote out her experience in the form of poetry. The story was told in a homely way, and did possess what is

The bargain he had made was irrevocable. He won his percentage; he paid his life, dying suddenly of one of those mysterious brain diseases, to which so many overtasked Americans fall victims.

He bequeathed to his daughters costly tastes and habits, a sum of money insufficient to gratify them, and nervous, enfeebled bodies.

If he had chosen in his health and youth a simple life, apart from the struggle for money and fashion, he would in all probability now be strong, helpful, happy man, surrounded by healthy, vigorous children, ready to undertake whatever good work God had set them.

There is a story in the Bible of a young man, the heir to a destiny which would have set him and his children apart from all others throughout the history of the world, who, in a momentary fit of anger, sold his birthright for a mess of pottage.

Few young people think of the story now, perhaps, or attach any significance to it in their own lives. But every boy who is crowding into the city, willing to sacrifice health, nervous strength, moral principle and quiet happiness in the effort to gain money and a place in the fashionable world, is selling for a mess of pottage a heritage as noble as Esau's.

GOD WILL PREVAIL.

The Proofs We Have That Our World Is Governed by a Moral God.

A prominent characteristic of the state of mind produced by Christian faith is confidence in the ultimate victory of good over evil. Here again is a truth over which much in the world at large, and in the lives of single men, may well cast a shadow. "The righteous perisheth, and no man layeth it to heart," the "ungodly are in no peril of death, but are as lusty and strong; they come in no misfortune like other folk, neither are they plagued like other men." This is the appearance which human life wears from age to age. Here and there we see notorious exceptions to the rule. But, upon the whole, evil seems to be in possession, and, as far as experience goes, it is likely to hold its own. When a Christian is haunted by this impression, which strikes at persistent faith in the moral supremacy of God, he turns his thoughts to the resurrection. Never did evil obtain such a triumph over pure goodness as when it misled Jesus Christ, our Lord, to the cross of shame. Never was the ultimate victory of goodness so clearly vindicated as on the morning of the resurrection. Of this supreme event, Joseph's exaltation to be the ruler of Egypt, David's triumph over Saul, Israel's deliverance, in one age from Egyptian bondage, in another from that of Babylon, were but faint anticipations. The greatest proof that evil was given that the world is governed by a moral God, was given when Jesus, the sinless victim of triumphant evil, was rescued by the resurrection from the clutches of death.—H. P. Liddon, Canon of St. Paul's.

A Higher Road.

A little boy sat in front of his father and held the reins that controlled a restive horse. Unknown to the boy, the reins passed around him and were also in his father's hands. He saw an occasion to pull them. With artless simplicity the child looked around, saying: "Father, I thought I was driving; but I am not, am I?" Thus it is often with men who think they are shaping a destiny which a higher hand than theirs is really directing. They do their own will because it is also the will of God. A stronger hand guides them; a mightier power holds the helm of their vessel, and saves from wreck and wreck. Happy are they who yield to the guidance of the Almighty hand.—Golden Words.

Gold as Snowdrops.

There are some Christians who are precise in their tastes, unimpassioned, pure as snowdrops and as cold. They never shed any tears, they never get excited, they never say anything rashly, they never do anything precipitately. Their pulses never flutter, their nerves never twitch, their indignation never boils over. They live longer than most people, but their life is in a minor key. They never run up "C" above the staff. In their music of life they have no staccato passages. Christ planted them in the church, and they must be of some service or they would not be there. But they are snowdrops.—Talmage, in N. Y. Observer.

"There is never a 'might-have-been' that touches with a sting, but reveals also to us an inner glimpse of the wide and beautiful 'may-be.' It is all there; somebody else has it now while we wait."—Mrs. A. D. T. Whitney.

"Patience is a prominent Christian grace. An eminent Scotch pastor in a late sermon on patience urged the importance of its manifestation in the family, with the stupid, with the bad, with ourselves and with God. These are points on which all may preach a sermon to themselves."—Christian Inquirer.

"A Presbyterian minister in a note to the editor of the Canadian Baptist, mentions a characteristic of Mr. Spurgeon, which is worthy of note. It is that 'notwithstanding his deep spirituality and his firmness in holding fast the faith, he was bubbling over with cheerfulness. He was a striking proof that cheerfulness is not another name for glumness.'"

POOR BRUNO'S DINNER.

How He Was Robbed of It by Jim, His Hungry Comrade.

When Bruno's dinner was brought to him by Susan, the cook, he was not hungry. She was going out, and so fetched it earlier than usual.

"There," she said to herself, "it's quite a step to the end of the garden, and if I forget the poor dog, no one else would take the trouble to feed him, so I'll go while I think of it."

Yes, sure, Susan was kind to animals, and could not bear to have them neglected.

So she put down the plate with the big bone beside Bruno's little house, and gently patted his head. Bruno jumped up on his hind legs, and tugged at his chain, wishing he might go with Susan. But she said:

"No, old fellow; Susan cannot take you to-day, for she has got to go to town; so take care of the bone, and eat your nice dinner."

But the cook did not know what was going to happen.

It was a hot afternoon, and Bruno lay down in front of his little house and thought.

He thought how pleasant it would be to go to town with Susan—there was so much to amuse one in town. He thought how dull it was to have to stay at the end of the garden. There was nothing to see but some stupid flowers, and trees, and blue sky. "I'll take a nap," he thought; "nothing happens here."

For Bruno did not know that something would happen, any more than the cook did.

So he stretched out his paws, and, putting his head on them, he was soon fast asleep.

Now, all this time a pair of bright eyes were watching what took place, through a crack in the fence. These eyes belonged to a big black-and-white dog called Jim, who lived next door. He was hungry, and Bruno's bone looked so good that he felt he must have it. He saw that Bruno's chain was short, and if he could only snatch the bone, and get out of reach quickly, he would be safe. It was selfish in him, but Jim was a mean dog.

He watched until Bruno was really asleep, and then ran to a place in the fence that had been broken, where he thought he could get through. But it had been nicely mended. He ran wildly back and forth until he found a place where he could just squeeze through.

Then, very slowly and quietly he came, gliding along, nearer and nearer, until he was within reach of the bone. He made a wild leap, and snatched the bone, but in his hurry, it fell with a rattling sound against the plate. Bruno woke and jumped up, barking loudly.

But Jim did not intend to lose the bone, for which he had taken so much trouble, and snatching it, this time firmly, he barked away. Poor Bruno rattled his chain, barking fiercely.

He made so much noise that the children who were playing in the garden heard him, and came to see what was the matter. You may be sure that Jim was by this time out of sight on the other side of the fence.

The children could not see anything wrong, and thought Bruno was barking at some one who had passed in the road.

But as they were going away Paul, the oldest boy, saw the empty plate, and said:

"I believe no one has given Bruno his dinner, for Susan is out. I will run and get it." So, after all, Bruno had his dinner.—St. Nicholas.

MONKEYS AS CASHIERS.

They Have a Peculiar But Effective Way of Testing Coin.

A newspaper published in the ancient city of Calcutta—it is difficult to think of such an ancient city in connection with newspapers—is authority for the statement that in Siam monkeys are often used by business men as cashiers. In Siam there are vast quantities of counterfeit money in circulation, and by it even the smartest men are deceived. Not so a monkey.

This odd cashier has a peculiar way of testing coin. Every piece is handed to him, and he picks up each bit of money, one at a time, and meditatively puts it into his mouth, testing it with grave deliberation. If the coin is good, he declares the fact plainly. He takes it from his mouth, and carefully places it in its proper receptacle beside him. He has pronounced judgment, and everyone is satisfied that the judgment is correct.

But if the coin is bad, the cashier makes known his verdict in an equally unmistakable manner. He throws it violently from his mouth to the floor, shaking his head with as much disgust as the merchant himself might feel at being imposed upon. With loud chattering and angry gestures he makes known his displeasure at being presented with a bad piece of money. The merchant could not express it better.—Harper's Young People.

Keeley Company of the other part, of the other part, of date of March 16, 1891.

The corporation shall commence on the 5th day of April, 1892, and continue for a period of twenty-five years thence ensuing.

The affairs of the corporation shall be conducted by a Board of Directors consisting of six members, to be elected on the first Monday in every November, and to hold office for one year thereafter, and until the election and qualification of their successors, and the election of the Board of Directors shall not occur until the first Monday of November, 1892. The incorporators hereinafter named shall constitute the first Board of Directors and shall hold their office until the first Monday of November, 1892. The Board of Directors shall elect from their number a President and Vice-President, and may also elect a Secretary, Treasurer, Manager and such other officers as they may deem best, from persons outside of the Board of Directors, and may prescribe the qualifications and duties of any such officers so elected.

The highest amount of indebtedness to which said corporation may at any time subject itself is one hundred thousand dollars.

In case of the death, resignation or inability to serve, prior to November, 1892, of either of the incorporators named herein, the legal representatives of the deceased or the one so unable to serve, shall have the right to nominate a successor as such Director in this Company during said period.

The private property of the members and stockholders of this Company shall be exempt from liability for the debts of the corporation.

Said corporation shall have perpetual succession, the right to sue and to be sued, and may acquire and hold real and personal property, real or personal, possessing the same power in such respects as private individuals enjoy; and may mortgage any of its property, real or personal, may establish by-laws and make rules or regulations deemed expedient for the management of its affairs, and incur liability with the constitution or laws of the State or of the United States.

In testimony whereof, we the undersigned, FRANK A. McBRIDE, GEORGE C. WEBSTER, RUFUS K. SYFERS, THOMAS WALKER, and W. J. WILSON.
